A Mattress topper rests over the top of your mattress and supports a mattress by prolonging its life by becoming a layer between the two the man and his mattress, delaying any sagging or general wear. A mattress combined with a topper will prove to have a longer life if you flip your mattress regularly.

King size mattresses are difficult to wash but king size mattress topper can solve this problem by being a layer that would save the mattress from spoiling, it can have replaceable covers, acting as a useful barrier to stains as well as more general damage to the mattress. Mattress topper is portable, easy to carry, and can be easily moved from one bed to another.

An extra layer of foam means additional comfort, also soft and flexible fillings can make a massive impact. It can enhance the comfort of a mattress that has firm back support but falls short in softness, the combination of these two can help you in finding the perfect balance for you. A combination of a memory foam king mattress topper and an inexpensive mattress can also be a lot cheaper than purchasing a full memory foam mattress. It will last longer before you have to buy a new one. Precisely, a king size mattress topper will have a very different feel altogether, it will improve the level of comfort for your sleep, and might extend the life of your mattress. This would prove to be an expense that's going to save a lot of your money, and add comfort and make you feel comfortable.

Different types of king size mattress topper

There are different kinds of king size mattress topper. Material is the most important factor in mattress protectors and toppers, and there are a few commons in this regard that would help you choose.

- Memory foam mattress toppers - Works in the same way as memory foam mattresses, it has a thinner layer that rests on top of the mattress you already have. It gently molds according to your body and provides additional comfort and support.

- Egg crate mattress toppers - Egg crate mattress toppers are known by different names, so 'egg crate' is a good catchword for a lot of different brands. They are made of a bumpy node-type foam surface that is similar to an egg box often in a padded cover. They can be easily rolled and stacked, while they might not be as luxurious as memory foam, they're a lot more flexible, and usually not that expensive.
- Wool or fleece mattress topper - Wool or fleece mattress topper use natural materials. They reduce the risk of allergies and are surprisingly soft - less itchy than you might expect. However, they are more expensive than the rest.

Is a king size mattress topper capable of replacing a new mattress?

King size mattress topper might extend the life of a king size mattress and make your old mattress comfortable for some time, they might reduce the feeling of a not in place spring from a spring mattress. But ultimately your comfort still relies on the mattress. The Sleep Council recommends that every seven years you should replace your mattress - if you are already using a mattress topper then your mattress might last for a little longer. More common or not, but king size mattress topper are worth buying, it's improved comfort, and increasing the life of your mattress is quite a decent deal. It is only a luxury if you are comfortable with your mattress, but in some cases, the topper can surely prove to be beneficial.

For people suffering from back or joint pain, particularly arthritis or fibromyalgia, the added support provided by a memory foam mattress topper could markedly improve your comfort while you sleep. Memory foam is sturdy and a body-molding structure also means that your partner's movements in a shared bed will not affect you a lot. Regular flipping of a mattress is highly recommended, but might not always be practical. If you are living alone and don't have anyone to help or suffer from joint pain, or simply struggle to lift your big, heavy mattress to flip it over, for this matter a mattress topper provides a simple solution - it's easier to turn over, and easier to clean, too. Mattress topper are also a great way to improve a folding sofa - while these are fantastic space-saving gadgets; the bars in their frames are quite uncomfortable and disturbing.
